Join us for our next Collaboration Lab, featuring Dr. Carrie Butts-Wilmsmeyer, director of the SIUE Center for Predictive Analytics. Her recent research examines the presence of contaminants in drinking water across Illinois, the environmental and infrastructure factors that contribute to those risks, and strategies for ensuring safe, reliable access to clean water. This lab will also be a chance for community members to share their concerns and questions about drinking water, and to explore how data and community insight can meet to shape healthier, more resilient solutions. Light refreshments provided. Free parking is available on the street or nearby lot! Please use the QR code to register!
